PATTERN 9226

You'll have no moment of dark despair if an old friend comes in to see you unexpectedly and you're dressed in this nicely tailored house frock! For it's especially designed to flatter larger figures, and fashioned along lines as chic as a street or sports frock. The sleeves, cut in one with that pretty, double-pointed yoke, have a little inverted pleat to make them jaunty and oh! so comfortable to work in! And the neat panel at the front sweeps all the way from hem to yoke to give you a long, slim line. If you'd be practical as well as attractive, choose a gaily printed cotton fabric, gingham, percale, lawn or seersucker, as they launder so beautifully and wear so well.

Pattern 9226 may be ordered only in sizes 14, 16, 18, 20, 22, 24, 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44. Size 36 requires 3 3/4 yards 36 inch fabric.

Complete, diagrammed sew chart included.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern.

Send your order to Sewing Circle Pattern Department, 232 West Eleventh Street, New York.

TELLING

"Do you believe in fortune telling?"

"No," answered Miss Cayenne. "I inherited a fortune sufficiently large to make me dislike to tell it so that the tax collector might hear it."

Kindred Spirits

Zoe—I heard you stayed in a haunted house all last night. What happened?

Moe—About twelve o'clock a ghost came through the wall just as if there was no wall there at all.

Zoe—And what did you do?

Moe—I went out through the other wall the same way.

She—Brace up and turn over a new leaf.

He—I did, only I turned it backward.

WORK RELIEF ACT SIGNED BY PRESIDENT—A. F. OF L. BACKS
THE TIRE STRIKE.

By EDWARD W. PICKARD
© Western Newspaper Union.

Harry Hopkins

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, deeply tanned and in good physical condition, was landed at Jacksonville, Fla., by the destroyer Farragut and started immediately for New York, to attend the funeral of his cousin, Warren, Delano Robbins, after which he returned to Washington. Aboard his special train the President read through the $4,880,000,000 work relief bill as it was finally passed by both houses of congress, called for pen and ink and appended his signature to the largest appropriation measure ever enacted by congress. There were some features of it, agreed upon in the senate and house conference, which he did not like, but he said those who had studied it recommended its approval.

The President at once signed two allocations from the amount appropriated. The first was $125,000,000 to the administrator of the Federal Emergency Relief administration, in order that relief might not stop. The second was $30,000,000 for continuation of the emergency conservation work.

In Washington the Republicans and some others discussed with dissatisfaction the probability that Harry L. Hopkins, relief administrator, would be the President's chief assistant in carrying out the vast work relief program.

"It is extremely fortunate for Mr. Hopkins that, if he is going to be the Lord high distributor of the money, the bill is so drawn that he won't have to be confirmed by the senate," said Senator Vandenberg of Michigan.

Representative Snell of New York, the Republican leader in the house, declared it was "a sad commentary that a man like Hopkins," who had termed critics of work-relief methods "d—n dumb," should "appear to be in line to be clothed with extraordinary grants of power over the greatest sum of money ever appropriated."

As fixed up in conference, the act does not require senate confirmation of administrators already in the employ of the government. That includes Hopkins, Secretary Ickes, and Rexford G. Tugwell, all considered probabilities as members of the board that will administer the work relief fund.

Work for a total of 3,500,000 destitute persons is contemplated under the relief bill. Officials estimate 2,500,000 of these already are working for relief payments. According to plans, these are to be absorbed by the new work program on July 1, leaving jobs to be found for 1,000,000 more. It was said that soil erosion control projects and rural electrification would be relied on heavily at the outset of the drive to increase the number at work. Later, officials said, the present work-relief program will be "pruned" to provide labor for other projects.

Robert C. Fechner, director of the civilian conservation corps, announced that his organization hoped to increase its strength from 370,000 to 600,000 men under the terms of the bill. He said this would call for the establishment of about 900 camps and the assignment of 10,000 corps commanders.

SOCIALISTS and Catholics of Danzig combined to give Chancellor Hitler of Germany his first big setback. In the free city's parliamentary election the Nazis polled 60.6 per cent of the total vote, but failed to get the two-thirds majority of the seats that would give them complete control of parliament.

Hitler and his followers had hoped Danzig would follow the lead of the Saar and return to the reich, and this may yet be the result, for the population of the city is more than 90 per cent German. But the Nazis were defeated in their attempt to lay the groundwork for the suppression of all other political parties and the establishment of a dictatorship. Presumably their next step will be to vote for a change in the Free City's constitution and to ask the League of Nations, which administers the city through a commissioner, to permit a plebiscite on return to the reich. This was openly discussed by Paul Joseph Goebbels, German propaganda minister, during the hot campaign in Danzig carried on by the Nazis. Poland was enraged by the violent methods of the Hitlerites in the campaign and demanded an apology from Berlin. The whole affair endangered the new friendship between Poland and Germany, and probably this was not mourned by the other nations of Europe.

WITH the rubber workers in the tire plants of Akron, Ohio, ready to quit their jobs, the American Federation of Labor pledged itself to finance the strike, which President Green declared would be a crucial attempt by organized labor to force on industry the collective bargaining provisions of the NRA. He announced his organization would "support the rubber workers of Akron for as long a time as may be necessary."

Green definitely marked out the tire strike as a test of labor's ability to make good on the promises held out to it by the New Deal. The national labor relations board, he pointed out, had ordered the big tire companies, Goodyear, Goodrich, and Firestone, to allow their workers to elect representatives for collective bargaining. The companies have refused and labor now takes into its own hands the enforcement of the NLRB decision, Green argued.

Green definitely marked out the tire strike as a test of labor's ability to make good on the promises held out to it by the New Deal. The national labor relations board, he pointed out, had ordered the big tire companies, Goodyear, Goodrich, and Firestone, to allow their workers to elect representatives for collective bargaining. The companies have refused and labor now takes into its own hands the enforcement of the NLRB decision, Green argued.

Tire manufacturers, on the other side, recognize the threatened strike as a key move in the New Deal program for regimentation of labor and industry and are fighting back. Firestone expected to go before the District of Columbia Supreme court and ask a permanent injunction against the NLRB and NRA meddling in its labor situation.

FOLLOWING the example set by Hitler, Austria has decided to disregard the limitations on its military strength set by the treaty of St. Germain and to increase its armed forces immediately. The official communique issued by Chancellor Kurt Schuschnigg did not say how big the army would be or whether conscription would be restored. The annual spring parade of the army at the Ringstrasse in Vienna was revived, and the troops appeared in fine new uniforms.

HIS health broken down by his strenuous tour of European capitals to induce the various nations to line up with Great Britain's peace plan, Captain Anthony Eden has been sent to bed by his physicians for some weeks. This is disconcerting to Sir John Simon and the other statesmen, for they are deprived of the company of the young lord privy seal at the tri-power conference at Stresa, Italy, in which Britain, France and Italy hope to agree on a security system for the continent. Eden was not able to make a personal report on his trip at the cabinet meeting but did tell Simon in detail what he had learned. Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald was directed by the cabinet to accompany Sir John to the Stresa conference when word was received that Premier Mussolini of Italy would be there. The great music hall in the Villa Borromeo on Isola Bella, half a mile out in Lake Maggiore was prepared for the statesmen, and they were to be completely isolated there with their experts and secretaries, no one else being allowed to approach the island.

Captain Eden

Important decisions regarding Britain's scheme for a general collective security system for Europe, the league's attitude toward German rearmament, the proposed revision of treaties affecting Austria, Hungary and Bulgaria, and the possibility of getting Germany to return to the league were expected to be made at Stresa.

SOVIET RUSSIA is still pressing Foreign Minister Laval of France to conclude a military alliance between these two countries, but Laval holds off, proposing instead the European security pact which would include Russia but would not be drawn up especially for her. Moscow is reported to be greatly vexed and it is said in Paris that French communists have been instructed by the Third Internationale to stir up all the trouble they can in order to coerce the government, reminding it that Russia, whenever it pleases, can disrupt France's defensive preparations and even bring on a civil war. Communists in France are so numerous and so influential that this may be no idle threat.

OUR minister to Canada, Warren Delano Robbins, succumbed to pneumonia in a New York hospital after a week's illness. He was a first cousin of President Roosevelt and had been in the diplomatic service for more than 25 years, being one of the most distinguished of the "career" men. He had served in Latin America, France, Germany and Washington before being sent to Ottawa.

Adolph S. Ochs, veteran owner and publisher of the New York Times, was stricken with cerebral hemorrhage while visiting old friends in Chattanooga, Tenn., and died without regaining consciousness. He was seventy-seven years old and had been in poor health for some time.

Another notable man taken by death was Edwin Arlington Robinson, generally considered the foremost American poet. He won the Pulitzer prize for poetry in 1922, 1926 and 1928.

ANNOUNCEMENT was made by the State department that the United States has accepted in general terms the proposal of Argentina and Chile for co-operative efforts to end the Bolivia-Paraguay war in the Gran Chaco. It was expected Brazil, which had been consulted, would join in the plan. Just what will be done has not been determined.

KANG TEH, emperor of Manchukuo, is the first foreign ruler ever to visit Tokyo, and he has been received with the greatest honors by Emperor Hirohito. The climax was a magnificent state banquet in the imperial palace at which Hirohito presided. Of course Kang Teh is just a puppet emperor, but the Japanese officially considered him the ruler of an independent state.

POSTMASTER GENERAL JAMES A. FARLEY went to New York to study the political and legislative situation there, and it was declared by local Democratic leaders that he would retire from the cabinet soon after the adjournment of congress. Mr. Farley neither affirmed nor denied the story.

He has been bitterly attacked for retaining his cabinet post and at the same time continuing as chairman of the Democratic national committee and of the New York Democratic committee, despite the edict of the President against such double holding. Mr. Roosevelt wants Mr. Farley to remain head of the national committee and to conduct his campaign for re-election, so he will give up his post office job; but he did not wish to resign while still under fire from Huey Long and others.

James A. Farley

JAMES R. BOURNE, federal relief administrator of Puerto Rico, was alleged to have said that "there are criminals in the legislature," so he was arrested on the charge of slandering that body. He denied making the statement but was held in $200 bonds.

Bourne has been bitterly attacked recently in both bodies of the legislature. The house adopted a resolution declaring him "persona non grata" because of alleged political favoritism to the Liberal (minority) party. The senate approved a resolution calling Bourne an "enemy" of Puerto Rico.

GENE SARAZEN resumed his old place of leadership in the golf world when he won the Masters' tournament at Augusta, Ga., after a tie for first place with Craig Wood.

PUBLIC works officials are said to have approved tentatively the allotment of $30,000,000 from the work relief fund for the Passamaquoddy project for harnessing the 27-foot tides of the Bay of Fundy to supply power for Maine and the rest of New England. Government engineers have reported that the project is feasible from an engineering standpoint, but they doubted there would be a market for the power to be developed.

TERRIFIC tornadoes tore through several southern states, Mississippi and Louisiana being especially hard hit. The number of dead was uncertain, but included at least 33, and more than 200 persons were injured. Gloster, a town of 1,200 in Mississippi, was practically demolished, most of its residences and stores and the lighting and water systems being destroyed.

Record-breaking floods occurred in California, causing ten deaths and serious property damage in the Feather river valley north of Sacramento and heavy losses elsewhere.

DEBATE on the Copeland-Tugwell food, drug, cosmetic and advertising bill was lively in the senate, and the opposition was led by a Democrat, Josiah W. Bailey of North Carolina, who urged the retention of the present food and drug law with such amendments as changed conditions require.

SENATOR GERALD P. NYE's munitions committee, which has spent seven months investigating the doings of the manufacturers of arms and armament, reported to the senate its measure designed to take the profits out of war and provide for the conscription of industry in the event of another armed conflict involving the United States. The bill is decidedly drastic, giving to the President in war time powers that are practically dictatorial, permitting him not only to fix prices but also to license all industry and control raw materials. It also has taxation features that will arouse considerable opposition. It would raise individual income taxes to 6 per cent in wartime, levy surtaxes up to 94 per cent on incomes in excess of $10,000, and seize profits of corporations in excess of 6 per cent return on invested capital.

The Nye bill gives the President very broad powers to fix prices of commodities, to license industry, to engage profiteering and to prevent the hoarding of goods. It provides for the drafting of industrial leaders, who would be permitted to remain with their companies, subject to military law.

Meanwhile the house military affairs committee reported the McSwain bill, similar to the senate measure but without the tax features. This lack made the more radical members angry but when they tried to amend the bill they were routed, 258 to 71.

The Nye senate committee, after reporting its bill, continued its inquiry. It heard a rather sensational bit of evidence to the effect that Roger S. McGrath, an insurance company agent who was described as a friend of the President's son, James, had sought successfully to obtain two naval building contracts for the Bath Iron Works up in Maine.

FOREIGN nations that discriminate against American imports have been warned by President Roosevelt that they must discontinue that practice under penalty of economic reprisals by the United States.

BEAUTY REGIME
MUST BE RIGID
TO GET RESULTS

Failure to practice them regularly is one of the reasons a good many women seem never to get the most good out of their beauty routines. If you do your exercises once a week instead of every day you can't expect to see a rapid improvement in your figure.

Drinking eight glasses of water only one day out of the month isn't going to keep your complexion clear and smooth, and dieting three days a week and then stuffing yourself with sweets and starches the other four won't make you lose weight. If you really are serious about keeping your skin, hair and figure lovely through the years you simply must stick by whatever rules you have made.

The same general idea applies to use of cosmetic preparations, too. One mask won't clear up a muddied complexion, but if you use a mask on a certain day each week for six months you will see an improvement.

If you are trying to get rid of fine lines around your eyes apply eye cream, muscle oil, tissue builder or whatever, each and every night before you go to bed. One application of anything just won't correct defects that have accumulated over a period of years.

You have to learn to pick the right aids, use them properly and, above all, consistently.

You should allow at least fifteen minutes each morning for application of make-up; about half an hour at night before you go to bed for brushing, cleansing and creaming; two hours one day a week for a visit to a beauty shop or for thorough skin and hair reconditioning treatments at home. The total is only seven and one-quarter hours per week—certainly not too much time to devote to your personal appearance.—Allie Hart, in the New York World-Telegram.

Chemists Seek Means of Slowing Down Oxidation

Oxygen which gives us life, is also man's greatest industrial enemy, notes a writer in the Montreal Herald. The air we breathe contains one-fifth oxygen, and this gas is a highly corrosive substance. When a house burns down it is simply combining with the oxygen in the air. When soap turns brown on a chemist's shelf it is merely another instance of the corrosive quality of oxygen. But it is the motor industry that suffers most from the ravages of oxidation. Its two chief organic essentials, rubber and petrol, are especially susceptible. Thousands of pounds worth of these materials have been utterly wasted owing to the action of air—and now the scientists have struck back. They have been experimenting with the development of substances known as anti-oxidants. These compounds when mixed with any product, slow down oxidation to such an extent that its usefulness and life are increased tenfold.

Fossil Find

Predictions of noted scientists that no fossils would ever be found in Death Valley are refuted by the discovery there of practically all of the skull of a Titanotherium, belonging presumably to the eocene or oligocene period. The momentous discovery was made by members of the staff of Death Valley National monument. A short time later a party of scientists from the California Institute of Technology unearthed another skull of the same type of mammal. Never before has the skull of a Titanotherium been found west of the Rockies, and but once previously have any fossils of this family of mammals been discovered in that region.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

DANNY MEADOW MOUSE WISHES HE HAD STAYED HOME

WHEN Danny Meadow Mouse crept into the little hole in the bank of the Smiling Pool his heart was beating so fast that it hurt. Then too, he was so tired that it didn't seem to him he would be able to move again for a long time. You see, crossing the Smiling Pool was a long swim for such a little fellow as Danny Meadow Mouse. He had not been in the water for a long time before, and so of course swimming tired him much more than it would have done had he been in the habit of swimming every day. It wouldn't have been so bad if he hadn't been obliged to swim just as fast as he possibly could. As it was, the Big Pickerel who lives in the Smiling Pool had almost caught him. So between his terrible fright and his hard work Danny was quite used up.

He laid down and for a while just panted and panted, and all the time wished that he had stayed at home where he belonged on the other side of the Smiling Pool. By and by his heart stopped beating so fast, and he didn't have to pant so to get his breath. You know the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows recover very quickly from fright and weariness. This is a wise provision of Old Mother Nature. If it were not so they would not be prepared to meet unexpected new dangers.

So it wasn't a great while before Danny once more felt quite himself. He crept to the entrance of the hole in which he had found safety and peeped out. He wanted to see if Reddy Fox was still on the other bank of the Smiling Pool, and what his chances of getting back home in safety were.

The Smiling Pool was as calm and peaceful and lovely as if no such thing as danger was ever known there. Over on the other bank Danny could see Reddy Fox. It was evident that Reddy had not given up hope of getting a meal of some kind at the Smiling Pool. Danny's big cousin, Jerry Muskrat, had just climbed out on the Big Rock with a lily root. This he began to eat. Just watching him made Danny hungry. Grandfather Frog had once more climbed out on his big, green lily pad. Danny looked down into the water and his heart gave a little jump. Half hidden under some lily pads was the Big Pickerel who had so nearly caught him. Danny didn't need to be told that the Big Pickerel was lying there in the hope that Danny would once more take to the water.

Suddenly an ugly black head with wicked looking horny jaws was thrust out of the water in the middle of the Smiling Pool. It was the head of Snapper the big Snapping Turtle, and the very sight of him made Danny shiver, for he knew that nothing would suit Snapper better for a dinner than a fat meadow mouse. More than ever Danny wished he had stayed at home.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I heard a woman tell another that her husband reminded her of a furnace. What do you think she meant by that?

Truly yours,
ROSE Z. PESEY.

Answer: She simply means that he smokes all day and goes out at night.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I heard two men discussing animals. One said that while in India he saw a "man eating tiger." The other said that once while in Boston he saw a "man eating rabbit." Do you believe that?

Yours truly,
IKE KANTSEIT.

Answer: Well, it's possible.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I heard two actors talking the other day and one of them said he was looking for a man to take down some foot notes. I am a musician but have never heard of footnotes before. Were they kidding? If not, what instrument were they talking about?

Sincerely,
SIM PHONY.

Answer: Foot notes, my dear sir, come from a shoe horn.

Picture of San Francisco Bay in 1937

© Calif. Toll Bridge Authority.

UPON an aerial photograph of San Francisco bay, with Oakland in the background, architects for the San Francisco-Oakland Bay bridge have drawn in to scale a representation of the world's largest bridge, 8¼ miles long (nearly four miles over water), which will connect Alameda and San Francisco counties. The west half of the bridge is a suspension structure comprising twin suspension bridges anchored into a huge concrete monument in the center. A double-deck tunnel pierces Yerba Buena Island, occupied by army, navy and lighthouse services, and the double-deck bridge continues over a 1,400-foot cantilever span, 5 through truss spans, and 14 deck truss spans before it lands on a fill extending out from the Oakland shore. At the eastern shore, trestles carry the bridge traffic on to three branches—one for Berkeley, one for Oakland, and one for the business section of Oakland and Alameda. The piers of this bridge—51 in number—set new marks on engineering frontiers, going deeper below water than any previous substructure has heretofore been built. Some of the piers go as far as 237 feet below low tide. The two suspension bridges have 2,310-foot main spans. The lower deck carries two tracks for interurban electric cars and three lanes for heavy trucks, and the upper deck carries a 58-foot highway for six lanes of automobiles. The clearance for ships at high tide is 227 feet, 37 feet higher than the masts of any ship now afloat.

It's a Season of Plaids and Checks

By CHIERIE NICHOLAS

GOES madly on the rage for checks and plaids. Where fashions are at their smartest these animated patternings are flourishing with all their might, both for day and evening wear.

The new plaids and checks are as apt to be "all wool and a yard wide" (more likely fifty-four inches) as they are apt to be of washable synthetics, linens or cottons. In fact among the swankiest weaves going you will find linens done in garish, racy plaids which make up too swagger for words—ever so effective for sports wear.

Then, too, topcoats of gorgeous plaids are going places where they never went before, for women are wearing them during the daytime hours about town and for travel as well as sports. Some have fur collars and some haven't, but they are that good looking with or without you will be envying the fortunates who possess them. The girl seated to the right in the picture is wearing a model which is styled with latest details, such as the hand-cut fringe of self material which trims the wide scarf ends and the wide turn-over collar. The predominating colors in the plaid for this coat are brown and beige with a streak of orange in its makeup. The same plaid is striking in tones of reds or greens.

Her companion is wearing a check suit and if you are wanting to get into something decidedly stylish for spring here's your cue and no mistake about it. This one is black and white but if you happen to be in some other color mood, there is a check to satisfy, such as green with gray, navy with white, brown with tiger yellow. Then, too, there are tweed checks galore out on the field of action. They are smart, to be sure, but we must say there is a regular landslide in the direction of the simple little checks as pictured.

It is ever so good style to wear a tweed wool check skirt with a jacket of plain or the reverse. It is smart, too, to top a plaid or check skirt with a colorful suede jacket.

Plaid taffetas for daytime frocks, either synthetic or pure silk are making a grand success of it this season. A shirtwaist dress of plaid taffeta is in the height of fashion. Likewise a one-piece taffeta frock topped with a redingote of wool in navy or black makes an ideal spring costume.

Myriads of simple little morning and informal afternoon frocks choose plaid for their media. The model on the standing figure plays up bias-to-straight effectively. Novel touches such as buttons in alternate colors and little pockets set in on the bias add zest to this mode.

The other dress is interesting, too, in that it is made of a star print—little stars instead of the dotted theme and you can get this material with white stars on navy or red and other combinations. A deep pointed collar of white pique and large white buttons tune into the scheme of things most cleverly.

NAVY AND YELLOW

By CHIERIE NICHOLAS

It is good-looking, this girlish frock and hat to match, is it not? It is a film-folk fashion and you know it is smart and advance if it originates in Hollywood, as it has. Ruby Keeler wears it. Attention is especially called to it because of its navy and canary color scheme. Navy for the foundational color with either white, yellow or pink is the talk o' town this season. The smart set are carrying out the idea by wearing accessories made of natural toned chamouis skin. The dress pictured is o' navy wool with accents of canary colored rough-textured crepe.

Turquoise Preferred

The turquoise has the preference among evening jewels, appearing effectively with white crepes and satins and especially with black velvet. Big turquoise buttons trim a black velvet dress cut away in front to show a faun-pleated underskirt of black tulle.

"SKIMMER" NEWEST WHIM OF HATTERS

The "skimmer" is the newest whim of the hatters, with madness its chief distinguishing charm.

The skimmer is the 1935 version of the pancake sailor which has been with us, off and on, in recent months. Only now it is flatter and crazier and generally more exhilarating than ever.

You clasp it on the side of your head at whatever angle best suits your current mood, batten it down with a band around the back or even a hatpin, and then go out and join in a sporting battle with the spring breezes.

There is one redeeming feature about the new skimmers. They have done away with the unsightly elastic bands that decorated last spring's version of this particular style of headgear, and have substituted bands of ribbon or felt or straw to match the hat.

New Silhouette Featured

by Alix and Schiaparelli

There is much discussion and some difference of opinion expressed concerning the new draped lines which had their most prominent exponents in Alix and Schiaparelli dresses. These influences, variously related to the Hindu, the Persian and the Iranian, are best known in the sari-draped togas familiar in Near East photographs.

The draping is in a soft, statuesque line, swirled round the body in a continuous movement from ankles to head. Several arrivals consider it a significant new silhouette trend, promising more for later season development. Others are inclined to disregard draping, considering it too extreme.

Spring Accessories Matter of Importance to Fashion

Accessories are going to be matters of prime fashion importance this spring for there are "ginger and snap" in the way they are put together. Here is the way one chic Parisian accents a black and white check suit: Yellow straw hat with black band, yellow blouse and yellow chamouis gloves, blue cornflower in the buttonhole, black suede bag and gloves.

Lace With Tweeds

Bows of soft lace are being worn with tweed costumes.

A FRATERNITY OF KINDNESS.

The Goodwill Industries which have made a victorious record of advancement as successful builders, are busily off on their 16th year of welfare and benevolent work among the poor, and needy. For an institution which has withstood vicissitudes, anguish and weathered storms, surmounting obstacles along the highway these fifteen years, there is unlimited praise in store. Such compassionate tenderness of soul to help the discouraged to a job has no comparison. "Not Charity But a Chance," has been the emblazoned motto all these years.

In the spring of 1919 Goodwill Industries of Southern California was incorporated with the purposes, then as now, to be educational, industrial, spiritual and benevolent; to provide industrial education and mental uplift; to endeavor to prevent pauperism, and by means of Christian cooperation to relieve the temporary distresses of the unfortunate. It has succeeded. Today there is in operation work shops and trade schools, industries, stores and medical clinics. The institution carries on any and all kinds of welfare and benevolent work among the poor and the needy. Branches are located in most all cities of the Southland with headquarters in Los Angeles. San Diego's plant is well patronized, under the able stewardship of Myron Insko, they are located in large suitable quarters which they are buying on a rent payment plan.

Clean, truthful advertising pays big results.

HOW ABOUT TAX REDUCTION?

We would like to meet the fellow that so cleverly induced us to vote for the State Sales Tax under the plea that it would reduce our real estate taxes.

This reduction was to have been noticed last fall but it has merely given someone more courage to increase the taxes and add other taxes to the picture. Will someone please explain what it is all about?—San Diego Kiwanis Tidings.

The Pacific Coast is rapidly becoming the major commercial center of the world. Great strides have been made in the Northwestern Metropolitan cities, but now the Southland is to be put on the map. The new breakwater off San Pedro and Long Beach promises outstanding possibilities as an augmentation to great commercial and shipping interests. Just now the twin harbor is attracting the attention of engineers all over the world. Designed to provide anchorage for the Navy fleet of ships. The breakwater will cost six million dollars and will dam off ten miles square in the ocean. The base will be formed by sand dredged from the inner harbor to form a twelve-foot base, hundreds of thousands of tons of rock are to be hauled from Catalina. This work already begun, will take four years. The estimate is for 3,000,000 tons of rock weighing from one to ten tons each. The breakwater will be fourteen feet above high tide. Such a project means invaluable worth to the shipping enterprises, and will make this point the headquarters for the entire Southwest and for orient shores as well as harbors of the world, possibly taking some of San Diego's port-business which she has striven so hard to acquire. Some day, not too far distant, a breakwater should be built off shore from Ocean Beach and run north to protect Mission bay channel, which should be dredged. This would mean a yacht harbor and boat anchorage, the value difficult to estimate.

The greatest asset to successful living is possession of good character. It takes a long time to build a character structure in any life, but it can be destroyed almost overnight. You can drive an auto with gasoline but it takes character to make progress in life. Human frailty is a bad agent and an enemy to man's growth. Unless you are honest with yourself, it will be difficult to be honest with others. The little things that you think you can hide, and get by, are the tell-tales that destroy character building. When suspicion arises character begins to topple and your powers will weaken and fall under the loss of confidence from others and you also lose self-confidence which is your highway to success. There must be growth in mental qualities if the mind is to expand. Your mind is the vehicle for making your decision. Fill it with good building material and your character structure will be sound, and built on a strong foundation.

Hitch-hikers of the highway are getting into ill repute, according to reports, but they seem to fare better in California than in most any other state in the Union. The American highway is getting to be one of the most formidable foes for the safety of humanity, and as traffic increases, the danger also becomes more liable. Some of the Eastern states have put a severe penalty on any person asking for a ride. Virginia, for instance, rewards the person who thumbs a ride with 30 days in jail or $50 fine. Connecticut fines $10; New Jersey, $50 or fifteen days; District of Columbia holds the high fine record of $300. Pennsylvania the low record of $2. More and more the states go after the bold wiggler of his thumb. Soon there'll be only one thing left for the desperate hitch-hiker to do—He'll have to hike, for you cannot deny him the road, if he chooses to walk.

According to recent information gathered by our government there are 200,000 more pupils to be taught than last year; 1,200,000 more than in 1930. There are a few more teachers than last year but 11,000 fewer than in 1930. About 250,000 teachers, nearly one in three are receiving less than $750 annually. Approximately 54,000 teachers one in sixteen, are receiving less than $450 annually. Unpaid salaries and outstanding salary warrants and certificates of indebtedness amount to over $100,000,000. Many teachers in elementary schools have classes of 50, 60, up to 70 pupils. Even in the Nation's Capital 13 per cent of elementary classes enroll more than 40 pupils. Money spent on schools in 1934-35 will $475,000,000 less than in 1929-30, and $332,000,000 less than in 1931-32, the third depression year.

(POINT LOMA HIGH SCHOOL)

The work on the opera "Rosamunde" by Schubert to be given in May under the direction of the music department is whirling along at a great rate with the cooperation of the PTA, the girls' physical training department, the art and dramatics and household art departments. On Tuesday evening after school, the orchestra recorded the music that must be used for the ballet dancing, which now makes it possible for Mrs. Dixon and Mr. Shepherd to work out the dance numbers to the actual music without calling students from classes, or holding them after school.

The competition for singing roles is still brisk in the most important leads: Thelma Fox and Betty Ballinger for Rosamunde; Rose Murphy and Virginia Cook for Hermina; Joan Wilson and Patricia Stose for Aja; Armond Ault and Kenneth Hait for Candia; Emery Bryans and Trevor Woodward for Fulgentius; Eugenia Williams and Rosemary Conklin for Baucis. The elimination of certain of these aspirants will be effected in the next ten days when practises shake down into a more definite pattern than at present.

One of the special features of the performance as a whole will be the dance specialties in the second act: A girls' ballet; a dance trio with the Pierette, Harlequin, Pierrot theme; and a schmetre dance of twelve boys in oriental costume with a final by David Robinson and Bryce Santry.

The Spanish Assembly given before vacation by the Spanish department succeeded admirably in interesting and informing eleven hundred students about the great Mexican mural painter, Diego Rivera. The art class project of a mural group after the Diego manner perfected from a design by Alice Casselmann, was a pretty piece of work and an effective background for the facts about Diego Rivera and his work as presented in talks by Jane Dennis and Mary Kearns. This type of assembly that is both informative and entertaining is gaining ground at Point Loma High.

There's a stir lately about hobbies among the students: such as Gaylord Parkinson's autographs, Milton Heller's bees, and Philip Faulconer's puppets! Gaylord now has the autographs of both former Kaiser Wilhelm and former Crown Prince Wilhelm, not to mention Einstein's and Inaull's and Beebe's and Irvin Cobb's. Milton has had fifteen hives of Italian bees for two years upon his grandfather's ranch. Philip Faulconer has been a versatile collector and puppet fan for years and now has all the adjuncts for "Rip Van Winkle" and "Little Red Riding Hood".

WARREN WALKER SCHOOL

The boys and girls of the Warren-Walker school, after a week's vacation, were glad to return to school to resume their studies. Each student had had interesting experiences and was anxious to make a report of them during the extemporaneous speaking period.

The last Friday of school, the students had an Easter egg hunt. About 150 eggs were hidden around the school yard. They were wrapped in gaily colored paper and all the students had a good time finding the eggs.

Richard Root, son of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Root of Point Loma, entered the high fourth grade last Monday. He is a good base ball player and will take an active part in our athletics.

PARTY RECIPES FOR CHILDREN

A SMALL boy recently broke into print for a "bright saying" about his nursery school. The parents, it seems, although keenly interested in the curriculum of his new school, were never able to extract much news from Johnnie. However, one day near the close of the term, he volunteered some information.

"We have a surprise at school every single day," he confided, "and it's always crackers."

This reminds us that the first requisite in planning party foods for children is that they contain an element of surprise—something awfully good to eat, dressed up to look surprisingly pretty.

Ice Cream—Of Course

The second requisite, perhaps, is that the menu include ice cream or some sort of frozen fruit dessert. Ice cream and ices, incidentally, lend themselves very nicely to surprise appearances. For a patriotic party, for example, a scoop of vanilla ice cream can easily be converted into a tent, if a flag is stuck in the top, and a tiny toy soldier, for a favor, stands guard on the dish.

Brick ice cream can be converted into Circus Parade Ice Cream by serving on each slice some gaily iced animal-crackers on parade. For May parties, or other spring fetes, fruit sherbet becomes very festive and desirable if it is served in baskets hollowed out of delicious sponge cake.

Following are some recipes for party foods which children will find surprisingly good.

Circus Parade Ice Cream: Mix the contents of three cans of condensed milk with one and one-half cups of water and add one tablespoon of vanilla. Then add three cups of mashed banana pulp. Add three tablespoons of lemon juice and three cups of cream beaten. Freeze in refrigerator trays (or in the ice cream freezer). Serve with several iced animal crackers standing on top of each serving.

Molasses or Ginger Cookies: Boil one cup of molasses for a minute, add one cup of sugar, one cup of shortening, two teaspoons ginger and two teaspoons cinnamon. Then add two well-beaten eggs. Add four teaspoons soda mixed with one-fourth cup of vinegar. Add about five cups of flour (or sufficient to make a stiff dough). Roll thin. Cut as desired. Bake in a moderate oven—375 degrees—for about twelve minutes. Use also for making gingerbread men. You may sprinkle with sugar before baking if desired.

Cream Cheese and Fruit Sandwich: Slice bread thin, butter and spread with cream cheese. Cover with a layer of thinly-sliced ripe banana, then with a layer of well-drained pineapple. Top with another slice of bread, buttered and spread with cheese.

Red Cherry Turnovers: Drain the syrup from one No. 2 can of pitted red cherries into a sauce pan, add the cherries which have been cut into quarters, and add seven-eighths cup of sugar. Boil gently until very thick, add a little grated orange peel, and cool. Roll pastry thin, cut in five-inch rounds and put a large spoonful of cherry mixture on half of each round. Moisten the edges with cold water, fold over and pinch the edges firmly together. Bake for twenty-five minutes in a hot oven. This makes eight turnovers.

Fruit Sherbet in Baskets: Boil one and two-thirds cups sugar and two-thirds cup water for three minutes, then cool. Add the contents of one No. 2 can of pineapple juice, one and one-half cups of orange juice and three tablespoons of fresh lime juice. Add the contents of one 1-pound can of evaporated milk and one-half cup of cream. Freeze. Make cup cakes of some plain cake recipe, or sponge cake, and hollow out the centers when cold. Ice the outside with a thin coating of different colored icings—yellow, pale pink, green, etc. When ready to serve, put a ball of the fruit sherbet in each cake and make a handle over the top with a long piece of candied orange peel. Tie a bow of narrow baby ribbon on each handle. Serves eight persons.*

HOME SEEKERS MAY ACQUIRE HOME IF VALUE GOOD

The National Housing Act should not be considered an emergency measure, simply as an aid in overcoming the depression, altho it is doing that very thing, according to Dr. A. H. Giannini, chairman of Bank of America's general executive committee. Rather it is an act enabling the family which has been planning a home of its own to realize that ambition now, either by building or by acquiring a home already built.

"The Federal Housing Administration, to which all loans must be submitted for approval, is lending full cooperation," said Dr. Giannini. "To date, Bank of America has made 242 loans, totaling $1,050,047 under title two of the act, the major portion of which were made in Southern California. In addition, we have 290 loans for $1,178,000 awaiting approval of the FHA. So far only 39 loans for $170,000 have been rejected. These figures show that if you have a clean cut proposition, money can be readily obtained to build or buy a home. "Under title one of the act, whereby up to $2,000 may be obtained to modernize homes, Bank of America has made 8,836 loans totaling $3,693,578.28. This is further evidence that the Federal Housing Administration is fully cooperating with our desire to make money available to home owners."

"The Easter Gift of Our Risen Savior: Peace", will be the subject of the sermon at the 10:45 o'clock service. This is a gift that only Christ can give, and a gift that only a believer in Christ can receive. Come and hear more about this gift.

The Sunday school lesson treated in all departments is "The Two Disciples on the Way to Emmaus". All children of the school are reminded to review their lessons for last Sunday.

A cordial invitation is extended to all to attend these services held at the Woman's club house Newport and Abbott streets.

MARCH BEVERAGE TAX $108,486.26

Sacramento, April 22—State taxes on beer and wine sold during March were $14,866 more than the same taxes for February, but were $10,627 less than the corresponding taxes for March, 1934. Since the first of the year there has been a steady decline in the yield from the tax at two cents per gallon on these beverages, according to statistics published today by the State Board of Equalization.

DR. WATTERS TO GIVE CHILDREN FREE EXAMINATION

May Day, Wednesday, May 1st, is Child Health Day, designated by act of Congress, proclaimed by President Roosevelt, and observed by the citizenry of the entire United States.

In San Diego, many osteopathic physicians and surgeons will cooperate in this splendid movement with a program of child health examinations. In Ocean Beach, Dr. Howard Watters has made space available in his office at 5002 Niagara, for the free examination of children up to 12 years old, by members of the San Diego Osteopathic society.

Examinations will be conducted on thoroughly scientific lines; teeth, tonsils, adenoids, and other areas subject to infection will be examined for the purpose of detecting any incipient condition, which might develop later with serious disease. Weight, height, diet, abnormalities, and especially spinal and muscular conditions, will be considered in giving a complete inventory of the child. Recommendations and advice will be given as to proper treatment of disturbances which are revealed.

Methodist Episcopal Services

"Jesus and Completed Personality" is the subject for the sermon Sunday morning by Rev. James H. Hughes, pastor of the Ocean Beach Methodist church. The service begins at 11 o'clock. Music by the choir under the direction of Mrs. Anna Forsythe.

The Sunday school hour begins at 9:45 with classes for all age groups. Epworth League in the evening at 7 o'clock. All are invited to attend any of these services.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Probation after Death" is the subject of the Lesson Sermon on Sunday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The Golden Text is from the Psalms: "God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave: for he shall receive me."

The Lesson-Sermon cites these verses from Paul's first epistle to the Corinthians: "Now this I say, brethren, that flesh and blood cannot inherit the kingdom of God; neither doth corruption inherit incorruption. For this corruptible must put on incorruption, and this mortal must put on immortality. So when this corruptible shall have put on incorruption, and this mortal shall have put on immortality, then shall be brought to pass the saying that is written, Death is swallowed up in victory." Among the correlative passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, are the statements: "Universal salvation rests on progression and probation, and is unattainable without them." "Progress takes off human shackles. The finite must yield to the infinite."

LOMALAND SCHOOL PRESENTS PERSEPHONE

Saturday, May 4th at 7:30 p. m.

the Rotunda of Lomaland academy will be predated with the atmosphere of Archaic Greece as the pupils of Lomaland school present their latest play "Persephone."

The play is arranged in a series of episodes which tell the story of the stealing away of Persephone by Hades, king of the underworld to his kingdom under the earth.

The deeper interpretation of Hades and Persephone symbolizing the life in the invisible worlds and the unseen wisdom is brought out by the young players.

Classic costumes and archaic dances give the production added interest and excellence together with the music adapted from the works of Schubert. The dance with cymbals is especially impressive.

Admission will be by program and the public is invited to avail itself of this opportunity of witnessing the results of this intensive work of the young people.

Our Weekly Bible Lesson.

(From The Sermon on the Mount—The Book of Matthew.)

JUDGE YOURSELF FIRST.

(Matthew 7—1-6)
Judge not, that ye be not judged. 2. For with that judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged; and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured to you again. 3. And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? 4. Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, Let me pull out the mote out of thine eye; and behold, a beam is in thine own eye? 5. Thou hypocrite, first cast out the beam out of thine own eye; and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye. 6. Give not that which is holy unto the dogs, neither cast ye your pearls before swine, lest they trample them under their feet, and turn again and rend you.

THE THEOSOPHICAL SOCIETY: POINT LOMA

Dr. Joseph H. Fussell, secretary general of the Theosophical society, will be the speaker at the public forum-lecture at the Society's headquarters on Point Loma next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock. His topic will be, "The Problem of Evil". He will be assisted in answering questions by Dr. Emma D. Wilcox, resident physician at Lomaland school.

Dr. Fussell is one of the pioneers of Theosophy in the United States, having joined the society during the life of its principal founder, H. P. Blavatsky, serving her principal collaborator in this country, William Q. Judge, as private secretary, which office he also held during the administration of the late Katherine Tingley. She appointed him secretary general, which post he also holds under the present, international leader, Dr. Gottfried de Purucker.

"Evil, per se", says Dr. Fussell, "does not exist in the Universe. We know evil only by contrast with good, and vice versa. We are all involving entities, and progress is achieved in the human kingdom by the conscious endeavor to rise out of lower conditions into higher. This requires constant effort to overcome the pull of lower conditions. To the extent that we give way to the lower self, we do evil."

GREAT EVENTS IN HISTORY

Nothing in this world is accident—no great event in history but came as the karma of the peoples or nation involved. It will be most interesting to view some of these incidents in the progress of civilizations from this stand point. Mrs. May 2, 1935 at 7:30 p. m. in the Mora Forbes will lead the discussion at the Ocean Beach Theosophical club rooms at 1940 Abbott street. All interested persons are most welcome and questions are invited.

CONSERVING THE SALMON SUPPLY

CONSERVATION has become an all-important word in government activities. Until recent years, however, it was a word seldom used in our vast new country. When our forefathers first came to America they settled in a land filled with beautiful forests and many rivers. The forests were bountifully stocked with birds and game of all kinds, and the streams afforded an abundance of fish. For many years it seemed that the small population could never use up this wealth of natural resources.

Today, however, forest conservation has become one of the major national interests. Every State has not only its forest commissions which cooperate with similar bureaus of the Federal Government, but its fish and game commissions as well.

People realized that the great herds of buffalo that once roamed the plains are gone, the flocks of wild turkey have dwindled to a sparse few, that trees would be at a premium for future generations—and hence this new significance of conservation.

High Food Value at Low Cost
The conservation of salmon has been of particular interest because of the high food value of this delicious fish which is so well adapted to canning that it has become one of the important low-priced food commodities.

Atlantic salmon have gradually disappeared from the rivers of the East until very few are caught except by sportsmen. With the increase of cities, towns and industries along the West coast there was a very real possibility that the Pacific salmon also would disappear. Beside the untold loss this would have meant to the food world, it would have meant ruin also to the salmon packers who engage thousands of men to work in this great industry. However, the states of California, Oregon and Washington have now made laws which give them authority to regulate the salmon catch within their boundaries.

Alaskan Wealth
When Alaska was purchased from Russia there was much criticism of the wisdom of such a step. This Russian "ice-box," as the critics termed Alaska, proved however to have been an untold bargain to the United States, bought at the price of about 400,000 acres. For not only has it afforded wealth in furs and minerals, but its waters have given us more than $24,000,000 in sea foods. Salmon is her most valuable fish industry.

Conservation of Alaskan salmon was made necessary by 1924, when over-fishing had resulted in a serious decline in salmon in certain districts. The Alaska Fisheries Act was passed giving the Federal Government complete control of when, where and how salmon is to be caught. The authority is exercised by the Secretary of Commerce through the Bureau of Fisheries. If it happens, for some reason, that the salmon run in a particular stream is very limited, then fishing is immediately limited or discontinued there until the fish have again multiplied.

The Bureau of Fisheries maintains fish hatcheries in California, Oregon, Washington and Alaska where, in addition to other kinds of native fish, hundreds of thousands of Pacific salmon are hatched, and later released into the streams where they are needed.

Canned salmon contains an excellent quality of protein for body building, a high percentage of fat which can be counted upon to produce energy, significant quantities of calcium and phosphorus indispensable for bone and teeth building, and also that much desired substance—iodine which prevents goiter.

"What's the difficulty, Brandon? Didn't you expect to see me this morning? Was that it?"

"Why... I... That is, I thought—"

Ben stepped close and dropped his voice nearly to a whisper.

"You thought I wouldn't be walking today? Was that it?"

"Not walking? I don't know what you're talking about." The older man's self-control was coming back rapidly now that his fright had passed away.

"I just came in to get matters straight between us, Brandon. Several serious things have happened to the Hoot Owl but in spite of them the Hoot Owl is booming; now, I presume, I can look for things to happen to me. Before anything does—because I'm not rash enough to be cocksure that it won't—I want you to get me straight."

The last vestige of his smile was gone by then. He stood spread-legged, hands locked behind his back, eyes boring into Brandon's gaze.

"I'm not interested in—"

"But you'll listen! You'll listen or I'll choke you until you'll beg for the opportunity to listen, Brandon! You'll listen to me this morning and it'll be the first and last time."

"I know a great deal. I can prove but little. I know that you started in to run me out by sending Duval to clean up my camp. Next, you tried to cripple my operation by having a firebug touch off the mill. Next, you or some of your men stole a piston head out of the express—"

"Don't go too far, young man!"

"I won't. The pits of hell are the inside limits for you, Brandon!"

"After that, you timed it nicely and blew up my trestle. You almost had us two or three times. But you flopped! The Hoot Owl is up on its knees, will be on its feet in a month if we keep going and it'll be sitting on the world by the time breakup hits us. All you've done to the job has only helped it."

"That's that! Next you try to get me, thinking, probably, that if you knock the skipper off the bridge the craft will founder for certain. You're wrong, there. You can't lick my men, because they're too many for you; you can't stop the Hoot Owl by getting me out of the picture. But if you want to keep on trying, it's your own funeral. I've only one thing to ask of you: try to play the white man, Brandon, and fight your own fights!"

His face was dark with rage, now, and he emphasized his last words by downward thrusts of clenched hands along his thighs.

Brandon smiled lightly.

"You're a queer young man," he remarked. "You dream in broad daylight and with your eyes open."

"A peculiarly detailed dream, Brandon! I've said all I have to say about the job and about myself but there is another matter left to be mentioned while I'm here. I won't even utter her name in your hearing, but any man who would pull a trick like you did and involve a girl... Brandon, a snake's belly is sky-high compared to you!"

And that touched the well-springs of rage that had been dammed back until the moment.

"You fool!" the man said heavily. The words came like the first break in a levee: slow, sluggish words.

And then, like the following toss of foam was the frothing rage in his scream. "You fool! I'll drive you out of this country! I'll hang your operation up for the crows to pick! I'll string the bones of this timber and your own bones across this country!" He swung his arms in wide, wild gestures.

He stopped, sobbing for breath, and his teeth clicked in an agony of passion.

"Dawn? Not mention her name? Well, I will. She's mine, you fool, body and soul! She's been mine for years. Because she smiled at you because she played with you don't think she's interested, fool! She's—"

He swayed backward as Elliott lurched toward him, but their bodies did not lock.

White and trembling, Ben stayed his own rush.

"No! Don't want to brawl over her," he choked. "But if you mention her name to me again I'm likely to lose my head and tear your hide off your carcass!"

His rage was so high, so holy, that the fear it inspired carried through Brandon's frenzy and the man stood silent, perhaps in awe.

Ben relaxed.

"Now," he said quietly. "I've just one thing to ask, Brandon. It's this: fight your own battles!"

He turned on his heel and slammed the door behind him.

CHAPTER XI

Ben began unblanketing his team with the haste of high temper but before he had finished Able Armitage halted him from across the street and came hurrying through the ruttled snow.

The old justice's face was marked by an expression of concern and he came close before he spoke.

"I hear Red Bart Delaney's in town."

Ben nodded grimly.

"Come to see me yesterday."

"No!"

"Yeah. Took a long look at me... over the sights of a rifle."

"Don't. Why, son?"

Elliott laughed mirthlessly and told what had happened in the Hoot Owl chopping the day before.

"So he's gotten down to the hiring of a killer?" Able looked anxiously into Ben's face. "Son... I can't go on. Timber or no timber; success or failure for the Hoot Owl, you've got to think of yourself!"

"I'm doing that. I've been to see Brandon and tried to drive him into the open. That's all I ask of him; that he fights fair."

"And if he won't, what?"

"Then I'll have to smoke him out!"

Able clicked his tongue.

"Benny, your way of doing things scares me! Why, this can't go on. It mustn't! It's your own affair, for sure, when he tried to shoot you down, but maybe, perhaps, possibly, I'm going to beg you to be careful. So long as Delaney's in the country you've got to keep low. Get back to camp; stay there; let us pick some man I can trust to follow Bart and Brandon night and day so you'll not be caught!"

"No," Ben shook his head resolutely.

"I'll go on about my business as I should. I've never run yet and don't like to start any fast foot work now."

"But it's your life that's at stake, Ben! Not like you. Why, not taking precautions in this thing is like monkeying with a high tension wire."

"No good, Able. I couldn't hold up my head if I hid out after the play I've made."

So Able was forced to give up after a time and shuffled up the street, drawing off his mitten again and rubbing his face briskly with his palm.

He had only reached his office and was unlocking the door when Aunt Em, walking grimly as if with a definite purpose, approached.

"Good morning," he began.

"Forget the palaver, Able Armitage!" the woman said sharply. "You're in trouble. So are we all, maybe. That's why I came to see you. Is it true what they say that this Red Bart Delaney has showed up here in Tincup?"

"As true as disease or death or anything else unpleasant."

"That's what I'd heard! Do I have to guess why he's come?"

Able untied his scarf and shook his head sadly.

"No, Em. Your first guess will be right. And he took a shot at Benny yesterday!"

"And missed, I'd judge from the look of him just now. But if he's still here there'll be a next time; and he won't miss then. Did you do your duty and send the boy to some safe place?"

Able sighed and told her of his talk with Ben.

"So you couldn't make him listen to reason!" she muttered. "Well, if you can't, I can't. And, as failing, there's only one other who would have a ghost of a show."

"Dawn?"

She nodded. "Dawn could. But she won't. She won't go to him now."

She wouldn't even listen to me talk about him, she's in such a state. She's up to the ears in love with Ben Elliott or I've got three legs! And then to have that scandalous woman do what she did and upset it all!"

She sat down heavily in a chair and drew a great breath.

"I don't have to ask you or any other man about Ben Elliott, Able! I know the clean and decent folks when I see 'em. I'd bet my reputation as a Christian woman on that boy! That piece of play acting at the dance was some of Nick Brandon's work, you can bet your last red cent! I had to give him a piece of my mind just for relief the other day and, goodness me, what a look he gave me! Why, Able, that man's worse than ever I thought! My oh, my! He gave me a look that like to froze the blood right in my veins, after all the years of palaver and soft talkin' I've listened to from him!"

"Well, what I'm gettin' at is this: The boy's in danger of bein' murdered every minute of day and night unless he takes your advice. There's no one left to try to talk him into being careful but Dawn. And how am I going to get her to see her duty when she goes into a cryin' fit every time his name's mentioned? Yes, sir. Every time she hears his name."

"She doesn't yet see that the affair was a put-up job, then?"

"See? She can't see anything, Able Armitage! Put yourself in her place. Suppose you were a young girl who's had the things to hear that she has all her life; and suppose you fell in love for the first time; and suppose that young man was accused of such nastiness right in public with everybody listening and gawping? Would you stop to figure that the reason he seemed guilty was natural? That the thing was so far fetched from the truth and such a shock that he was all kerkummed? I should say you wouldn't! You'd do just what she's doin'; make yourself all sick with chills and fever by cryin'!"

She twitched at the skirts of her cloak irritably and glared at the old justice as though he were a sworn enemy instead of a friend.

"What ails her is shock. She ain't got over the shock yet and every time his name or anything else about him is mentioned it sets her off again. She'll get over it, give her time. But then she'll be so humiliated to think she didn't use her reason that she won't be herself now! There ain't any time to lose. She should patch up her misunderstanding with him right today—right this hour—and use her influence to persuade him to keep low. But how it's to be done I'd like to know. For Lord's sake, Able, ain't you got a single suggestion?"

The justice had been stuffing light wood into his stove during this. Now he touched a match to the tinder, opened the drafts and stood with hands behind him, rusty overcoat unbuttoned and drooping, deep in thought.

"It's difficult to get anyone in her state to use reason. Maybe the shock of knowing that Ben's life is in danger would be a counter irritant to this other shock. Maybe not. If the affair of last week could be cleared up, if Dawn could be shown that this Lydia woman was only carrying out a plan

But I wonder...

Aunt Em stiffened in her chair. She looked hard at Able and her eyes narrowed a trifle.

"You see," he resumed, "if the girl—"

"Hold on, Able Armitage!" she cut in, holding up a hand in warning. "Hold on, now! I've got to think. Got to think, I tell you! And I can't think while you carry on your gabble! You leave me alone, now. Keep your tongue still. They say a woman's tongue is hung in the middle and loose at both ends. But... Yum... As she pressed one hand over her eyes her words dwindled to unintelligible mumbblings.

"I've got it!" she cried excitedly after a moment. "I've got it, now! You stay right here, Able! You stay until I come back. If it works, it works. If it don't, it'll be time to talk some more!"

She moved resolutely to the door, left the office and strode down the street. People of Tincup watched her pass; people she had known for years spoke to her and drew no response, not even so much as a glance or a nod. On past the bank, the post office, the pool room.

On beyond all the stores, on down to the depot.

There, on the platform, she stood a long interval staring across the tracks to that short row of house on Section Thirty-Seven. The station agent came out of the office and looked at Em in surprise.

"Hello!" he cried. "What brings you down here before—"

"Homer," she cut in grimly. "In which one of them nasty places does this Lydia woman live?"

"Why-why... Why, now should I know?" he evaded as a red flush crept up from his collar. "In the one at this end, I think. I'm not sure, of course."

I think she does, though.

But he no longer had a listener. Resolutely, slowly with something like defiant majesty, the woman crossed the tracks, with never another word to her informant and never a look to right or left. Her head was up, her mouth set, and her long nose wrinkled as if at a

SYNOPSIS

Ben Elliott—from "Yonder"—arrives at the lumbering town of Tincup, with Don Stuart, old, very sick man, whom he has befriended. Nicholas Brandon, the town's leading citizen, resents Stuart's presence, trying to force him to leave him to run the one lumber camp, the Hoot Owl, that Brandon has not been able to grab. This belongs to Dawn McManus, whose father has disappeared with a murder charge hanging over his head. Brandon sends Duval to beat up Ben, and Ben throws him out of camp. Don Stuart dies, leaving a letter for Elliott believing he can win the fight by his own efforts. Fire breaks out in the mill. Ben, when the flames are subdued, discovers it was started with gasoline. Elliott gets an offer for logs, that will provide money to tide him over. But a definite time is set. Ben discovers Dawn McManus is not a child, as he had supposed, but a beautiful young woman. The railroad bridge over which the Hoot Owl and himself drives the train over the rickety structure to Tincup, making the delivery with only a few minutes to spare. Brandon compels a woman (known as "Lydia") who is in his power, to accuse Elliott of misconduct with a girl. Overwhelmed, Elliott escapes Dawn, Lydia makes public her charges. Ling h'n guilty, leaves the dance without waiting for him. While in the woods, Elliott is fired on, and drops, seemingly dead, but his fall has been a ruse to make his enemy believe him dead. The would-be killer is proved to be Red Bart Delaney, notorious desperado.

disgusting odor. A woman up by the stores shaded her eyes and peered at the moving figure and stared and stopped. Aunt Em Coburn, headed for Thirty-Seven! Why, it couldn't be!

But Aunt Em mounted the steps. She rapped at length and vigorously on the scarred panel of the door. She went within, leaving a dozen long-distance watchers to wonder.

It was long before she emerged and then—

Ah, then Tincup had a sight to see, a subject for speculation! For by Aunt Em's side moved the woman Lydia, collar of her fur coat high about her face as if to hide the traces of tears which hastily applied powder could not eradicate.

Tears from those hard eyes? Nothing less! For women know women and before Aunt Em had talked to this outcast five minutes she had discovered the weakness in her shame, the clean spot left in her heart. And how Emma Coburn could talk! She talked that clean spot to a growing, glowing, glorious thing. She talked Lydia out of her house, across the tracks; talked her into that slow, unashamed, almost flagrant march up the main street; talked her out of all but one look of misgiving at the windows of Nicholas Brandon's offices. And around the corner and in beneath the hemlocks which whispered above the snug white house. They entered, where Dawn McManus had hidden since the woman's words sent her flying from the dance hall to the sanctuary of Aunt Em's understanding arms.

All the way out to camp Dawn smuggled close against Able in his worn, old buffalo coat. Now and again she trembled a bit; once she cried softly a few minutes. But much of the time she talked.

"To think it was the man I used to call Uncle who did that thing!" she cried. "Why haven't you told me, Able? Why haven't you warned me?"

"What he's done, what he's been, what he is, were no things for you, Dawn, girl. I've just tried to stand between you and many unpleasant things. You've had your share as it was."

"I could have stood this one more," she replied, stoutly enough. "It hasn't been so bad these last few years, knowing that everybody thinks my father a murderer. I'd just gotten myself above that and now... and now..."

"What now?" Able asked gently. She looked at him through tears.

Same Among Lumbermen

Individual in all things, New England has its own meaning for a word used in various parts of the country as slang. Elsewhere "hay-wire" may be synonymous with "erratic" or a "little mad." In Dr. Frank Vizerelli's records of the vernacular slang use of the phrase "gone hay-wire" is defined as signifying something or somebody "gone wrong." In Maine's North Woods the serious implications of that usage are fully understood.

No greater slur can be cast upon a lumberman's equipment than to say "It's a hay-wire outfit." Hay-wire is used in temporary repairs. The man who thus employs it is foresighted and ingenious, but the man who habitually uses hay-wire instead of making permanent repairs is shiftless.

The hay for the lumbermen's horses comes bound in bales. When these bales are broken the wise teamster saves for emergencies the hay-wire which held them together. A good "toter" would not start his team on a trip without taking hay-wire any more than he would set forth without an ax or a pail.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Green Tea Far East's Choice

Green tea made from the unfermented leaf is the choice of the Far East and is made entirely in China and Japan. Black from the fermented leaf is made in India.

Fighting Ants With Smoke in Brazil.

Prepared by the National Geographic Society, Washington, D. C.—WNU Service.

THE word "ant" in Japanese consists of two complex characters. The first character means "insect"; the second, "unselfish, justice and courtesy." In other words an ant is "an unselfish, just, courteous insect."

That is a delightful compliment, and many species may deserve it; but there are ants as savage and ruthless as the ancient Huns or Mongols—ants that devote their lives to foraging in vast armies, destroying the nests of others, and killing all insects and animals in their way.

There are queen ants that enter a foreign colony, ingratiate themselves with the citizens, foully murder the true queen, and usurp her place. There are ants that raid the nests of their neighbors and kidnap their young as slaves.

Some, high in the scale of ant civilization, make their own gardens and grow their own special food. There are ants that keep "cows"; others that gather and store honey in barrels made from living nest-mates; still others that use their own young as spoils of silken thread in making nests.

In sheer numbers, too, the ants challenge imagination. Their legions outnumber those of every other land creature in the world, except possibly some minute forms of life. So far, some 8,000 species, subspecies, and varieties have been collected and painstakingly classified.

Interesting Study.

The immense amount of work devoted to studying ants in all regions of the world bears witness to their magnetic appeal to the interest of man.

Thus there have been published monographs on the ants of Madagascar and of New Caledonia; catalogues of the species which inhabit Brazil, Chile, Switzerland, Connecticut, and the peninsula of Baja California. One huge volume concerned with the ants of the Belgian Congo alone contains 1,139 pages.

Even the ants that crawled on the earth three million years ago live again in the pages of voluminous books, because their bodies happened to be entombed and preserved in the following resin of prehistoric pines, now known to science as the "Baltic amber."

The common little yellow house ant takes readily to life on shipboard, and so has traveled to all parts of the world. It takes kindly, also, to heated houses, and so, although a tropical ant, it thrives in northern countries and has become a pest everywhere.

One of our lawn ants, Lasius niger. In its several varieties spreads itself throughout the entire northern hemisphere, where it damages the golf greens of Washington, D. C., as impartially as it does the temple gardens of Japan. It is one of the most abundant single species of insect.

Some warm day, preferably after a shower, find a nice, flat stone on a sunny hillside and turn it over. There probably will be an ant nest beneath it—a series of channels leading from one cavity to another. Worker ants rush about, excited at the sudden uncovering of their home. One, very much larger than the others, is the queen, or there may be several of them if the colony is a large one. If there are males, they are present only during the mating season; they are usually much smaller than the rest, generally dark in color and wearing large wings.

Females Protected.

Piles of larvae and pupae, a few of them unusually big and destined to become females, will be whisked below out of sight while you are watching. If you look closely, you may see the eggs, little clusters of tiny white specks adhering together. The "ant eggs" of commerce are not eggs at all, but pupae of the large red ant. The cocoons, from which adult ants soon would emerge, are gathered in large quantities in Europe and dried and exported, to be used as food for goldfish and captive soft-billed birds. At zoos a few of them are put in custard fed to the anteaters.

In our nest under the stone there may be one or more reddish beetles stalking slowly about among the ants. These are guests or parasites. Often they have a strange hold upon the affections of their hosts. They beg liquid food regurgitated from the communal crop, or storage stomach, of the ants, which sometimes so neglect their own young to pamper these insidious spongers that the colony becomes debilitated and dies out.

On the roots of plants in the passages there may be plant lice, or aphids and coccids, the "cows" of the ants. As the weather gets warmer, the lice will be taken out and "pastured" on the roots of other plants, sometimes on Indian corn, where they do much damage to the farmers' crops. In this case, ants are an accessory to the fact. It is the aphid that does the harm, but the damage is greatly exaggerated by the ants' tender care.

By a stroking process similar to milking, the ants obtain from the plant lice a highly valued food substance, honeydew. This is the sweet sap of plants after it has been sucked out and passed through the bodies of the tiny insects, most of which take more than they can absorb.

As this forms the chief food of many ants, they tend and protect their cows as conscientiously as do any pastoral people. Sometimes they even build sheds of carton, a papery substance, on the trunks of trees to shelter them. At the approach of cold weather the ants sometimes gather them into their nests on plant roots, taking them out to pasture again when the danger of frost is over and their proper food plants are growing.

One Point in Common.

All ant colonies have one point in common. The members, excepting, of course, guests, parasites, and other intruders, are all children of a widow queen who has left the home nest on her nuptial flight. After mating high in the air, the male always dies, as he falls to earth far from the home nest and is helpless without workers to care for and feed him. The female, however, has marvelous resources within herself, and all alone she establishes a home and a family of her own.

After fertilization the queen creeps into some cranny beneath bark or under a stone; sometimes she constructs a small shelter of crude paper made by chewing bark from a tree. Now she lays her first eggs. During the time when she was a larva and a newly hatched female in her home nest, she had been constantly cared for and even pampered by the workers of the parent colony. Special foods were given her.

From now on there is no further use for wings, so she scrapes or bites them off. The wing muscles disintegrate and add to the stored-up food which she is able to feed her first babies by regurgitation. The first hatched are runts and weaklings, but ants, nevertheless, their instinct is fully developed and they go to work collecting for their mother and for their new and constantly appearing sisters.

An ant colony has been created. The queen, her troubles over, becomes a mere egg-laying machine, carefully fed and protected by her children.

Although practically all ant colonies are founded by a lone female, there are some extraordinary exceptions. One is Carabara, an ant of Asia and North Africa, noted for being a great enemy of the "white ants," or termites, on which it feeds.

When the mother-to-be Carabara goes on her honeymoon, a number of the almost microscopic workers attach themselves to her legs by their jaws, and in this way are with her to be of help when she starts the new colony.

Extraordinary and somewhat piratical methods of establishing colonies are followed by the females of some ants, usually species not physically capable of caring for their own first brood. One kind steals into the nest of a related species, hurriedly seizes and makes a pile of the pupae already there, and fiercely defends them from their rightful owners. When adult ants emerge from these pupae they are loyal to their kidnaper mother and, unlike, commence to care for her eggs and for the young hatched from them. This results in a mixed colony of two species.

A few species of western ants of the genus Formica have very small females, thickly covered with soft yellow hair. Entering a colony of another, though closely related, species, they so ingratiate themselves with the workers that they are adopted and the rightful queen is murdered by her own progeny, who devote the rest of their lives to the new queen and her young. The original inhabitants eventually die off, leaving their native nest entirely in the possession of the usurper and her brood.

In north Africa a fertile queen of the "decapitating ant" (Bothriomyrmex decapitans) will fly to a nest of Tapinoma, a much larger ant, and loiter around the entrance until Tapinoma workers seize her. They take her into the nest, but for some reason do not eat her; whereupon she climbs onto the back of the rightful queen and saws at her neck until the head falls off. Then the Tapinoma workers adopt her and care for her eggs and young until the nest is populated only by the offspring of the regicide.

More males and females are produced; queens fly away, find another nest of Tapinoma, and repeat the process.

Rays of Sun Important in Relation to Foods

Experiments recently carried out in Cleveland, Ohio, go to prove that animals derive their energy by the reradiation of the sun's rays on the food they eat. Dr. George Crile placed brain tissue in a flask and in total darkness a faint greenish glow was seen, which grew even brighter when the bottle was shaken. By the use of very delicate instruments it was proved that these radiations are produced in different wave lengths, and that the addition of certain drugs increased or decreased the luminescence at will. Doctor Crile, who has studied from a scientific standpoint the behavior of thousands of animals, says that the thyroid and adrenal glands differ in size, according to the needs of their owners. Thus, lions and tigers possess large glands, which give them the energy they need so often at a moment's notice, but these glands are much smaller in alligators and crocodiles, whose habits are mostly slow and sluggish. It has been established that the thyroid glands in the case of man are larger than the adrenal glands in animals because there is a much greater need for sustained energy over long periods.—London Tit-Bits.

Scientific Oddities

Recently two very important scientific discoveries have been made. One is that under the state of Montana lies a vast glacier composed of various gases, which have formed a natural refrigerating agent and frozen an underground lake. The other is that, suspended sixty miles above the North polar regions, is a canopy of ice-particles. French physicists who visited Greenland say that it is the cause of many violent thunderstorms. In contrast to these is the huge subterranean fire which rages beneath a mountain in the state of Colorado. It started in a coal bed years ago, and periodically, as the mountain is eaten away, it slips down till now it is 100 feet lower than it was ten years ago.—London Tit-Bits.

TOWN RUN BY WOMEN

Oak Park, Ga., claims the distinction of being the only town in the United States run entirely by women. A complete petticoat ticket was elected without opposition at the recent municipal election. The women named a ticket because the men officeholders had not done the things women thought necessary.

Worcestershire, England, claims to have the world's greatest porcine mother in a sow which, it is claimed, produced 385 youngsters in 11 years, 65 being born in three litters in one year.

Sleep EIGHT Hours a Night

The trouble with most of us is we don't get enough exercise and we eat the wrong foods. We haven't any respect for our stomachs until they start to kick up a rumpus. We go along for years filling ourselves full of acids, the result is we can't sleep nights and always have a heavy loggy feeling. My doctor advised taking Milnesia Wafers to get rid of the acids and now I sleep soundly all night.

MILNESIA Wafers neutralize the excess acids that cause indigestion, heartburn and sick headaches. Each Wafer is a full adult dose, children—one-quarter to one-half. Pleasant to take. Recommended by thousands of physicians.—At All Good Druggists.

The card party Wednesday evening, given by the Townsend Pension club of Ocean Beach, had a very large crowd in attendance, and a good time is reported by those participating.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Smith enjoyed a trip to Calexico last week end, going down Saturday and returning Sunday evening. The Smiths were invited to Calexico to attend the first anniversary of the unveiling of an 8x10 painting which Mr. Smith presented to the First Baptist church of Calexico last year.

Troop 28 will take part Friday and Saturday in a merit badge display on aviation at the Indian Village in Balboa park, in which all troops of the county are participating. Troop 28's display will be under supervision of Buddy Faber, leader of Cobra patrol and Russell Haggeman, leader of Black Hawk patrol.

POINT LOMA HIGH GIRL WINS ESSAY CONTEST

Lois Walsh, tenth grade student at Point Loma high school, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Walsh of 4903 Brighton avenue, has just won the high school essay contest offered by Amroc auxiliary 1512 V. F. W. on the subject "What Being an American Citizen Means to Me".

Lois's essay of two-hundred and fifty words was one of ninety-three high school essays sent in by the English classes of A. Bess Clark at Point Loma High. The competition was keen within these ninety-three and from reports there were one hundred and fifty essays in the high school section from all the local high schools in the city.

The Judges of the contest were Judge Mundo; Miss Ada York, county superintendent of schools; and Captain C. W. Calhoun, U. S. A.; Mrs. W. E. Burns of 3552 37th St. managed the contest sponsored by Amroc auxiliary 1512 V. F. W.

On Friday morning of this week a representative of that auxiliary will present the five dollar award to Lois Walsh for her winning essay at an assembly in the auditorium of Point Loma high school.

"It Pays To Look Well"

A few weeks ago the News was given a copy of the Ocean Beach and Point Loma Promoter dated April 24, 1912, T. Strain, editor and A. F. Hahn, manager. This publication was a new one, being printed in San Diego, and most of the names contained in local and personal items, are strange to those people living here now.

Significant as a first page item is the following: "New houses at the rate of three per week are being erected at the Beach and the suggestion that a pier should be built made by this paper seems to have struck a popular chord. There certainly will be a pier and that very shortly." Well this writer was most optimistic for it is now 23 years later and we are still anxious to have a good pleasure pier built at Ocean Beach.

This 23-year-old paper also says Mr. and Mrs. Peeler gave a box party attended by Mr. and Mrs. H. Calan. Mr. and Mrs. Router, Miss Fairchild and guests of honor Miss Brissac who is playing at the Grand. E. D. Wilson & Co. leading reptors bought a Ford auto to facilitate their business. The Ocean Beach Improvement club received assurance from the city it would keep the beach free from kelp. In the Roseville news it stated that Mrs. Alfred D. Robinson of Point Loma, gave the first of a series of luncheons at her cozy bungalow the "Gaiumph House" at Ocean Beach. White watonias and narcissus poetis were used for decorating purposes. Guests were Mesdames R. F. Paine, Harold Taylor, L. A. Blochman, Frank Frye, L. N. Callis, Fred Grumm, Rodney Stokes, and the Misses Eleanor Parttridge, Linden Andersen, Myra Daley, Agnes Christador, Lena Creswell, Elizabeth Freeze and Nell Fraser. Advertisers in its columns were F. B. McElwee, F. J. Peeler, Stienberg and Cissel, W. A. Thomas, the AAA store, Roger Popple, Griffin and Osborn, J. K. Blackmer, D. C. Collier & Co. and Snider's Basket grocery. While this was three years before the completion of the Panama Canal plans were then going ahead for San Diego's 1915 Exposition.

Jurgens at Mission Beach Sunday Eve

Dick Jurgens and his orchestra have been booked by H. L. Northern to play a one night engagement at the Mission Beach ballroom this coming Sunday night. Dick Jurgens has just completed his third month at the famous "Palamar" in Los Angeles, where his orchestra has been broadcasting nightly over a large radio network. Before playing at the "Palamar", Jurgens had a long engagement at the well known St. Francis hotel in San Francisco.

Connoisseurs of dance music are predicting outstanding national fame the Jurgens group, which is scoring one of the greatest successes ever achieved by a dance orchestra in Southern California.

When Dick Jurgens arrives at the beach ballroom this Sunday night, his orchestra will be enriched by the voices of Eddie Howard, 'Dede' Vance, Stan Noonan, Bill Carey and the comedy and harmony of the "3 Jokers", male trio.

NEWPORT HOTEL GETTING THOROUGHLY RENOVATED

Since Nate Sommers has taken over the Newport hotel a few weeks ago every room and apartment has been treated to two coats of paint, rugs all taken out and cleaned, and other renovating done to bring the hotel into a desirable place for the many vacationists who will spend their summer in Ocean Beach.

The hotel was visited last week by Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Schuppert, of Macomb, Ill., who are attending the University of So. California at Los Angeles. They liked Ocean Beach and expect to return for a longer stay during the summer. Mr. Schuppert is a teacher in the university of the Illinois city.

Leaving the hotel Newport Monday after a short stay were Mrs. Helen W. Callahan and children, her mother, Mrs. C. E. Potter, all of Yuma, Arizona, and Mrs. Callahan's brother, W. G. McIntire of Kansas City.

LOTUS CIRCLE FOR CHILDREN

The Ocean Beach Theosophical Sunday school for children meets every Sunday morning at 10:30 at 1940 Abbott street. A cordial invitation is extended to all who are interested in The Ancient Wisdom Religion.

BIG COLORFUL NUMBER OF FAMILY CIRCLE THIS WEEK

The special spring number of the Family Circle Magazine is being given away all this week April 26th to May 2 by local Safeway-MacMarr stores, who are celebrating the event as spring Family Circle week. A new cover design, featuring beautiful natural color photographs of Merle Oberon, film star, and Mary Taylor, socialite advertising model, raise the curtain on this special issue, the biggest issue published to date.

Two fiction stories, by Ellis Parker Butler and Elizabeth Eastman, foot the fiction bill; the lowly boiled dinner has its face lifted by Ida Bailey Allen, famous home economist; while Julia Lee Wright tells how to do all sorts of wonderful things with oranges, lemons and grapefruit.

Editor Harry Evans draws on his personal friendship with Merle Oberon, British film star, to tell the story of her career, in which ingenious design and not always happy circumstances have combined to make a remarkable human interest story.

That magic and fairyland realm of "haute couture" (society dress-makers to you) is explored by Harriet Thorndyke, who tells of Mary Taylor and others from the cavalcade of society who choose their frocks from the exclusive New York dressmaking salons.

Beauty on a budget is explained by Sarah Todd Phillips in a new beauty department which starts this week and Peggy Randolph in her fashion page, writes of clothes for spring brides.
